

Dear Friends of the Library,

Outreach continues to expand and have more facets. These photos depict the latest facet of outreach from the Boone County Library to citizens of Boone County. Paperback Exchange racks have been placed in the Alpena City Hall and the Lead Hill City Hall and are much appreciated by Mayors patrons before you have read them all.

Additional existing facets of outreach include: reading to ABC and Head Start day schools in the County; creating mini-libraries of 25 books or more at these same day schools and refreshing the books monthly; delivering books to homebound patrons who are unable to come to the library; and permitting patrons to reserve and renew BCL books from home using the internet.

And judging from all the hoopla about digital books, the ultimate facet of outreach to be anticipated will be checking a digital book out of the Boone County Library and reading it on any visual display device found about the house. This without leaving the house.
