

LIBRARY STAFF HONOR BOOKS Continued

Kelsey Rudd, Circulation Clerk

Facing Your Giants
by Max Lucado

I chose the book Facing Giants because it tells you, that just like David had to find the courage to face his giants, so can we.

I think that Christian bible-based books are great to read because they help us with our daily walk with Christ.

Sandy Williams, Children's Clerk

Drawing on the Right Side of the Brain (Revised)
by Betty Edwards

This book is a revised version of one of my favorite textbooks when I was in college. I highly recommend it to anyone who is interested in drawing. It has some great exercises for drawing what you see rather than obsessing with how it looks on paper. Once you've read through this book and worked through some of the exercises you will look at drawing in a whole new way. I hope my kids have this one in college!

Check it out, and have FUN with it!!
Thank you for this honor book!

Susan Woodard, Business Mgr./ IT

Cancer: Fight it With the Blood Type Diet

by Peter J. D'Adamo

My mother was diagnosed with an inoperable tumor in January of this year. After enduring 7 rounds of chemo, she opted to utilize alternative therapy. We found the information provided in this book to be very helpful.

How to Fight Cancer and Win

by William L. Fischer

How to Fight Cancer and Win has good information concerning optional therapies and what I think is most important, providing hope for the patient and their family.

Yard Sale continued from page 4

Friday, the day of the sale, started before the sun came up with the first customer showing up about 5:30. It quickly became evident that the best hours of a yard sale are before 8:00 a.m.. It pays to start before the other yard sales, and, because it was a week day, many people showed up before going to work. Business was brisk all morning, but then the sun starting getting brutal and around lunchtime business started to taper off. Prices were then slashed to 50%. The best of the merchandise was sold. After a brief onslaught of more customers stopping by on their lunch hours, sales became more sporadic. The sale ended at 3:00 p.m. as planned.

Our FOL volunteers worked a combined total of 120 hours on the sale. And they worked like a well-oiled engine. Everyone saw what needed to be done; they rolled up their sleeves and pitched in. Would they ever do it again? Ask them after the memory wears off.

An enormous thanks goes out to the eleven volunteer workers listed below who had the courage to try something different and pushed themselves to the limit. Through their efforts this adventure brought in $1127.52, half of which went to the owners of the house and half of which will be used to benefit the library.

Nola Barnett

George Cline

Dale Crunkleton

Kathryn Crunkleton

Frank Hampson

Beth Neel

Charles Neel

Mel Pollock

Barry Posterick

Chris Posterick

Mary Wright