Learn to Tat
(with interactive DVD)
by Janette Baker

I chose this book because tatting is a dying art - as quilting was years ago. Interest seems to be renewed, but there isn't a lot of instructional material available.

A History of God: The 4,000-Year Quest of Judaism, Christianity and Islam

by Karen Armstrong

I am interested in the beginning of all religions. Karen Armstrong is a respected religious scholar. She's a nun, but I'm in love with her anyway.

Life is Mostly Edges

by Calvin Miller

This book has special meaning to my family because Dr. Calvin Miller was senior pastor of Westside Church in Omaha, Nebraska. We attended and were members of this church which was started by Calvin (he preferred using his first name instead of Dr. Miller) several years ago and it became one of Omaha's largest churches. Calvin also performed the marriage of two of our children.

In addition to being a minister, he was an artist and author. We are proud to have a number of his art works, and for a number of years his Christmas greeting to us was a print of one of his paintings.

He recently retired as a professor at a seminary in Alabama. He is a very special friend.

Call of the Wild: A Mutts Treasury

by Patrick McDonnell

These characters are very loveable and in their own way share a glimpse into what it might be like to be inside the mind of a canine or feline "Mutt". The comic strips are good to help people think a little differently about their pets or just the average mutt on the street. All in all, I think this book would be a great addition to the young adult area.

McDonnell's "Mutts" comic strip has been recognized by the National Cartoonists Society as Best Strip of the Year for its distinctive style and wonderful humor, not to mention its stand on important social issues. He is a dedicated animal advocate and serves on the National Board of Directors of the Humane Society of the United States. He also serves on the Board of Directors at the Charles M. Schulz Museum.
